Arcadis supports enterprises to integrate substance regulations into their daily business practice, to ensure compliance throughout the entire product lifecycle without disruption of the supply chain.

SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT SERVICES

- Is your company placing new products on the market, or entering new markets?
- Do you want to prevent that market introduction is hindered or delayed by the complex set of substance regulations?
- Do your customers have additional product policies or requirements in place (e.g. “no SVHC” policies)?
- Do you want to ensure proactively that your products fulfil future substance regulations?

To maintain customer satisfaction, not only the timely launch of your product in full compliance with applicable substance regulations is crucial, but also the ability to provide updated substance information during the lifetime of the product.

To show continuous compliance with substance regulations, you need to embed them into your strategic planning, product design and development processes. This will allow you to manage both existing regulations and emerging substance regulations and industry trends.

In complex supply chains, transparent communication with both suppliers and customers is critical to achieve this. Cooperation in the supply chain, established by means of clear development goals, requirements and tooling is indispensable to any proactive, precautionary and sustainable substance compliance management.
